Your One Stop Reef Forum

Dear Potential Sponsor;

First I would like to thank you for taking the time to read about Coralforum and what our site is about. Coralforum is a site dedicated to Safe and Healthy Reef Keeping, Education, and "Aquariums in the Classroom". We are excited to be launching our newest addition to coral forums ... our 'fish flake' program. An interactive way for our members to learn, share and be rewarded for their participation on our site.

"Aquariums in the Classroom" is our newest forum and our members are loving the idea. Several members have already introduced aquariums into their local schools. Our members are proud to be sharing their love of the hobby to the next generation of reef keepers. Your sponsorship can have a great impact with kids doing water testing, maintenance and propagation. This is the next generation of reef keepers and teaching them with the proper equipment is vital in learning the hobby. We also have a photography forum where members can show off their tanks as well as photography skills. We then have a monthly photo contest where members can submit their photos to win monthly prizes for their efforts. If this sounds like something you or your company may be interested in, please have a look at one of the three sponsorship packages below.

Coralforum Sponsor Packages:

Silver:

With the silver package, you get the following. Cost of $30 per month
